

A CONSTITUTIONAL ARGUMENT

---

The first sign of cultural collapse is not that people believe lies. It is that everyone knows the lie is a lie — and ordinary people are still required to repeat it.

A girl who says a male does not belong in her sport is called hateful. A parent who says his school should not hide his child's confusion from him is called unsafe. A doctor who questions a protocol is labeled a spreader of misinformation. A pastor who preaches what Scripture says about the body is called a danger to democracy. The lie does not stay an opinion. It becomes a loyalty test. That is enforced unreality — and it did not arrive by accident.

This book traces how it happened: the progressive dismantling of constitutional restraint, the importation of Marxist moral categories, the long march through schools, courts, media, churches, and bureaucracies that turned ideology into the air ordinary Americans breathe. It covers the sexual revolution and its endpoint in gender ideology. The judicial usurpations that placed revolution beyond democratic correction. The education system that claims children before parents can reach them. The bureaucratic class that converts failure into jurisdiction. The unfalsifiable worldview that treats every disaster as proof that more power is needed. And the conservative failure that managed the surrender instead of reversing it.

It names the institutions that enforce unreality. It names the lies they require. And it tells the truth about what fidelity to reality now costs — and what it produces in those who refuse to look away.

The only way back is truth.

---

Lyman Epp is a constitutional conservative from Cape Coral, Florida. He writes from first principles, with a plain-spoken insistence on truth, moral clarity, and civilizational sanity. His work challenges fashionable evasions, political hedging, and the comfortable falsehoods that shape modern public life.

LYMANEPP.COM

A CONSTITUTIONAL ARGUMENT

How the Left Lost Its Grip on Reality

LYMAN EPP

A CONSTITUTIONAL ARGUMENT

AGAINST THE POLITICS OF UNREALITY

*How the Left
Lost Its Grip
on Reality*

---

Not liberal drift. Civilizational inversion.

LYMAN EPP